Master students, Wine and Cheese

New Master Students join us on April 6th, when the new semester rolls around! Master Students: Come to the recreation room (N0.002) at 19 c.t. to meet them and enjoy Wine and free Cheese with us. It will be delicious!

Repetitorials

Exams tend to stretch ones nerves. Fortunately, there are the student council's repetitorials to go through the lecture material in detail, practice a lot and answer all your questions. Attend!

For AIMa* and Ella even two dates can be offered. All information is available as always on the FS website: fsmath.uni-bonn.de.

By the way: the money for the tutors for this comes from the quality improvement money for teaching. The money in the pot is allocated in the associated committee, which also includes four student representatives.

Examination Protocols

Had an oral exam? Then get back to your desk and write a report! Do your service for the future math students and get 5€ pocket money for it. Templates are available in the student council and the next generations will thank you.

New opening hours of the Nebengebäude

On the initiative of the student council, the opening hours of the outbuilding were adapted to those of the mathematics library. From now on they are open Mo-Fr until 11 pm and Saturdays until 7 pm.

Hot tip: Use empty seminar rooms as group work places.

Lecture reviews online

Live is hard as math student in Bonn. There are tons of lectures which sound interesting, but no one has enough time to do all of them. To make the choice easier for future students, write reviews about the lectures you attended and send it to lecreview@fsmath.de! We will then upload your review on our website. More Information at fsmath.uni-bonn.de.

Riddle

In a zoo, ostrich and zebra live in the same enclosure. All in all, Little Johnny, who is already quite good at counting because he will certainly study math, counts 72 animals and 200 legs. How many zebras live in that zoo?

Solution of last months riddle:

German Version: $\frac{2}{3}$, English Version: $\frac{14}{27}$
